

HOARDERS WILL HAVE CHANCE TO BUY GOVT. BONDS

Response To Campaign To Circulate Money Is Spontaneous

BULLETIN
Washington, Feb. 18.—(AP)—A round of conferences among governmental financial leaders resulted today in a decision that details of a plan for the sale of small denomination government bonds to stop hoarding will be announced by the Treasury on March 7.

Colonel Frank Knox of Chicago, calling first at the White House and later at the Treasury, disclosed a part of the plan which calls for a patterned after the Liberty loan campaign of the World War.

General J. C. Harbord, president of Radio Corporation of America, has been selected chairman of the committee in charge of the campaign.

Washington, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Col. Frank Knox of Chicago, director of President Hoover's anti-hoarding campaign, formally announced at the White House today that a bond issue to provide "a safe and secure substitute for currency" would be offered by the Federal Treasury to coax hidden dollars back into circulation.

Colonel Knox, after conferring with Mr. Hoover, said that a "quick campaign within the next few weeks" was planned along the lines of the Liberty loan drives during the war.

Colonel Knox intimated that these reconstruction bonds would be in small denominations but refused to go into the details of the issue or to give the total amount in mind until he had talked with Secretary of the Treasury Mills.

"I am going now to confer with the Secretary of the Treasury," Colonel Knox said, "and the details will be announced soon."

Demand Wide-Spread
"I have been in touch with every part of the country in the past week. From every quarter comes an insistent demand that this commission provide the people whose money is out of circulation with a safe and secure substitute for currency now locked in treasuries or safety deposit boxes. That can only be satisfied by some thing that has the government directly back of it."

"I said as much to the President and to the Secretary of the Treasury, and can say that this need will be met. The form of this substitute is the immediate problem on which we are working."

Colonel Knox, in response to a query as to whether it would be "a baby bond" issue with denominations as low as $50, said:

"I can't talk about those details just yet."

"The form of the security, however, I can tell you will satisfy the demand for this substitute for currency and one of the qualities which must be met in that demand is that the substitute must be in small sums."

Colonel Knox was optimistic that he commission's efforts to end hoarding would be effective.

The response and eagerness to restore money to circulation, he said, "is even more striking and spontaneous than was the response to the first issue of Liberty loan bonds during the war. We don't have to educate the people up to the value of a Treasury bond this time, because we have gained by our experience during the war."

"War" Opens Feb. 22
Chicago, Feb. 18.—(UP)—The Citizens Reconstruction Organization's campaign to draft slacker dollars for the war on depression will open February 22 with a nationwide broadcast of advertising.

It will be followed perhaps Sunday, February 28, by the signal for a house to house drive to sell "prosperity" bonds.

The "C. R. O." headquarters in the Daily News building made this announcement today as it redoubled its activity to complete the organization that will urge citizens to exchange hoarded funds for Treasury bonds.

James Keeley, gray-haired, short, stocky and energetic Vice Chairman of the campaign, sent telegrams today enlisting the cooperation of 328 daily newspapers and advertising material for release beginning Monday went forward to the same publications.

By the end of the day Keeley hoped to complete the skeleton of the organization that will call upon business and professional men, workers and housewives, to buy the bonds. Two-thirds of the state chairmen already had been named, but not announced.

RECONSTRUCTION CORP. HAS COME TO BANK'S HELP

Has Loaned Over One Hundred Million In Two Weeks

Washington, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Millions upon millions of dollars have been poured into the foundations of the American business structure during the last two weeks by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Working quietly, day and night, the huge credit organization has devoted its first attention to small banks. These institutions, which might have been forced to close their doors had not credit been extended, have resumed their normal functions, according to reports reaching the Corporation. The total already distributed is reliably estimated at more than $100,000,000 exclusive of the $50,000,000 turned over to the Department of Agriculture.

Sizeable loans have gone to two hard-pressed railroads, the Washab, already in the hands of a receiver, and the Missouri-Pacific. These loans were acted upon swiftly, after the directors of the Corporation were informed a serious emergency would arise if they were delayed.

In the Department of Agriculture machinery has been perfected for handling the $50,000,000 set aside by the act for the especial use of agriculture.

Peoria Underworld Feud Starts Anew

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 18.—(UP)—The Penn-Julian underworld feud, believed responsible for several bombings here last December, broke out anew last night when an attempt was made to kill Leo Sharrick, Julian's step-son.

Three men knocked at the door of Sharrick's home. A voice, said by William "Bee" Penn, ordered him to unlock Sharrick's room upstairs for a shotgun and the men fired through the door. Sharrick opened fire from a window, and a trail of blood indicated he wounded one of his assailants.

One revolver bullet missed a baby in its crib by a few inches.

Carlstrom Replies To Attorney Keller

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 18.—(UP)—A candidate may be nominated for office at the April primary by the mere writing of his name on the ballot by two voters, provided, of course, no other candidate is contesting for the nomination, Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom held in an opinion released today. The opinion was given in answer to a query from States Attorney Mark C. Keller of Dixon.

As an example for the ruling, Carlstrom declared that if no petition is filed by any person for an office in the primary election and "John Smith's" name is written in by two voters, "Smith" would be the candidate of the party to which the two voters belong. He said that two voters were necessary because the law requires a successful primary candidate to receive more than one vote.

MAD TRAPPER OF NORTH IS KILLED

BY ROYAL POLICE

Mounties Get Their Man After Two-Months Chase In Cold

Aklavik, Northwest Territory, Feb. 18.—(AP)—In fresh fallen snow of the Rat river country, about a week's hard mud from where the majestic Mackenzie pours into Beaufort Sea, the blood of Albert Johnson has written—as the blood of hunted men has written before—the familiar, inexorable axiom: "The Canadian Mounted Police always get their man."

The mad trapper of Rat river died yesterday with a rifle stock tucked against his fur-jacketed shoulder, a cold-blued finger upon the trigger which had sent death to one mountie.

As he fell in snow fresh laid by a blizzard that stung the faces of the police who had cornered him, he sent two bullets whining toward his attackers, dropping Staff Sergeant E. F. Hersey.

Above him dived a plane. In it was ready to drop in case the fire of the ground force failed. When May saw Johnson dead he slipped his plane to a landing on the snow, picked up the wounded Staff Sergeant, placed him in the plane and flew him here. Hersey lies today critically wounded, a bullet through the knee and another in the chest into which it ricocheted from his elbow.

Once before in the two-month pursuit of the mad trapper the same pilot had flown a Mountie home. The other time it was Constable E. Millen, and Millen was dead.

"Crazy Like A Fox"
During all the eight weeks Johnson had laughed at the law of the northland, the Mounties, trappers and Indians called him mad. They said he was crazy; crazy like a fox.

Indians had complained that someone had been robbing their traps. The trail of the thief led to Johnson's place.

The officers knocked on the door. Bullets through the wood answered them. Constable A. W. King fell severely wounded. His companion, R. W. McDowell, loaded the wounded officer on a dog sled and in the teeth of a cruel Arctic blizzard rushed back 80 miles to Aklavik in the remarkable time of 20 hours. The Arctic seldom has seen such speed under such conditions. It saved the wounded man's life.

Other police in greater numbers went to the mad trapper's cabin. Bullets warned them away, but they would not leave. They bombed the cabin off. Johnson's mad laugh echoed to them across the glistening snow. Bullets from his guns kept them at a distance.

The Mounties sought to starve him out; but Johnson escaped through a tunnel.

Was Great Marksman
Hard as the ice that seals the Yukon lakes, with a pack of policemen behind and the grim northland winter ahead, Johnson rushed on. Once the law caught up with him. He had thrown up a three-sided fort. That time they thought they had him. It was then a bullet from his rifle killed Constable Millen.

All Millen saw was a fur-wrapped head protrude above the fort and the gleam of the midnight sun upon the barrel of a gun. Death was instantaneous. Persons who knew Johnson say he could hit a mark at half a mile.

The Mounties, leaving two of their number on guard, returned to Aklavik for supplies. While they were gone the mad trapper slipped away.

May and his plane kept the posse supplied with food and ammunition. Johnson rushed on. Often he doubled on his trail so foxily that he was at his pursuers' rear, watching his own pursuit. Back tracking and circling, he out-manuevered the hunters repeatedly.

But yesterday the trail of the mad trapper, plain as print in fresh fallen snow, zig-zagged. It meant he was through, his strength, great though it was, exhausted.

His Final Stand
Staff Sergeant Hersey, forging ahead of the posse, came upon him first. Johnson was weak; but there still was strength to lift a gun, still power to press a trigger, still that uncanny aim that could send a bullet to a target at half a mile.

Hersey fumbled to get his own weapon from the sled to which it was strapped. Too late. Two bullets tore into his body.

The plane circled overhead. Bombs were ready to be dropped, but the posse by now was too near.

The full force of policemen, Indians and trappers came forward, their guns speaking in unison. A single volley dropped the mad trapper of Rat river in the snow.

Frozen with his body was the secret of his madness. Who he was and what prompted his eccentricities none in the Northwest Territory knew. He was under 40, powerfully built. A man who knew him in Saskatoon said:

"He was a smart fellow. He was able to do 40 miles a day through the snow with little more exertion than one might expect from a Sunday walk. He was a crack shot with rifle or revolver."

"He went into the wilderness 12 years ago. He never came back."

Hawthorne, N. Y., Feb. 18.—(AP)—A 65-year-old nun, Sister Bernard, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed St. Hyacinth's school, a Catholic boarding school.

STATE OFFICER HERE TO PROBE ALLEGED ARSON

Mrs. Clara Hart Gives Officials Support For Her Charge

Deputy State Fire Marshal George Kirane of Belvidere arrived in Dixon this morning to conduct an investigation of an alleged arson case which yesterday was reported to the State Fire Marshal's office at Springfield. The building occupied by Mrs. Clara Hart on Madison avenue and Second street, which was badly damaged by fire of unknown origin about 2 o'clock yesterday morning was being investigated by Deputy Marshal Kirane today.

Members of the local arson squad who investigated the suspicious fire yesterday, were reported to have found a large bottle partly filled with kerosene near the building. While the total loss was of a small amount, it is reported that there was no insurance and the occupant of the building informed Fire Chief William Mitchell and Chief of Police J. D. Van Bibber of her suspicions that the buildings was purposely fired, which resulted in the investigation yesterday and the presence of the state officer in Dixon today to continue the investigation.

The woman is reported to have furnished the local authorities with the name of a suspect, whom she is alleged to have stated, had threatened to burn her home.

Suspect Questioned
The police at noon today took in custody the first suspect in the alleged arson case. State Fire Marshal Kirane and Chief Van Bibber shortly before noon took the suspect to the city hall for questioning.

While no charges had been preferred, it was reported that he was being held for further questioning by both officials later this afternoon.

The suspect is said to have at first denied any knowledge of the fire and later admitted going to the place at the early morning hour, according to his story, to deliver groceries. Finding the door locked, he is said to have told the officers that he entered through a window and in so doing stumbled and fell, knocking over a small stove. He is also said to have claimed ownership of the partly filled bottle of kerosene of which was found near the burned structure late yesterday.

The name of the suspect, a Negro, is being withheld pending the outcome of this afternoon's investigation.

Lombard Boy Found Hanged To A Tree
Wheaton, Ill., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Missing for four days, Arthur Pegee 23, of Lombard was found hanging today from a tree on a farm several miles from his home town.

His father, Dietrich H. Fleegle, a butcher, refused to discuss his son's death. The DuPage county Sheriff and Coroner began an investigation immediately.

A search was begun for Gladys A. Wilkins, 21, of nearby Glenn Ellyn said by Fleegle's family to have been his sweetheart.

The girl's car was found abandoned near the tree from which Fleegle's body hung. Fleegle left home Sunday night with her in the car.

Visits Court Room With Romantic Past
Atty. William T. Terrill has returned from a professional visit to Vandallia. While there he transacted business in the court room in which the state commission of which Lincoln was a member sat to determine whether the state capital should be at Vandallia or Springfield. He was told that Lincoln sitting near a second story window, noted that if he could get out of the room the commission would be equally divided, so he quietly opened the window and dropped out, making it impossible for the commission to come to a decision. The furniture in the old court room is 92 years old.

Cancer Curable In Its Early Stages
Chicago, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Dr. Burton J. Lee of Cornell University, regarded an authority on cancer, says the majority of cancer cases are curable if treatment is started in early stages.

He told the Chicago Medical Society last night "as soon as the public and the medical profession realize that early diagnosis and the advancement of surgical technique make nearly every cancer curable, a long step will be taken toward control of the disease."

The medical profession, he declared, is behind in the knowledge of cancer. He advised special training courses for physicians.

Ex-Service Man Is Convicted Of Death
Galesburg, Ill., Feb. 18.—(AP)—A jury in the Knox county Circuit Court last night convicted Virgil Springer, 36-year-old ex-service man, of slaying Ernest L. Sprout, 43, a farmer for whom he worked.

Springer was beaten to death, the state contended, in an argument after he had gone to the tenant house early one Sunday morning to ask Springer to milk some cows.

Bandit Slugs Guard And Makes Escape
Joliet, Feb. 18.—(AP)—George Nelson, 23, a Chicago bank robber being returned to the state penitentiary here last night, covered his armed guard with a pistol almost within hailing distance of the prison, forced the driver to proceed to Justice Park and escaped with the cab.

County police were notified at once but no trace of the man had been found. He was taken to Wheaton, Ill., earlier in the day to stand trial on another robbery charge and the guard, R. N. Martin expressed the belief someone slipped Nelson the pistol on an elevator train in Chicago.

The convict was serving a year-to-life term for the robbery of the State Bank of Hillside in November 1930. The trial at Wheaton was on charges of robbing the Itasca State Bank of $4,000 in October, of the same year.

Bank Of England Reduces Bank Rate
London, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The Bank of England extended a helping hand to the commercial community and a financial gesture of confidence to the world today by reducing the bank rate from 6 to 5 per cent.

The 6 per cent rate was imposed on Sept. 21, 1931, when the country went off the gold standard.

Soon after the announcement in Threepenny street word came from Oslo that the bank rate in both Sweden and Norway had been reduced from 6 per cent to 5 1/2 per cent.

The improvement in the international outlook and the result of preliminary conversations regarding the Lausanne conference were taken to be one of the guiding factors in the bank rate reduction, but the chief reason is cheaper money and the fact that market discounts have fallen to such a low level as to make a six per cent rate ineffective.

U. S. EMBASSY IN SAN JOSE IN LINE OF BATTLE TODAY

Occupants Forced To Flee As Loyalists Attack Rebels

San Jose, Costa Rica, Feb. 18.—(UP)—The United States legation was evacuated today after rifle and machine gun fire spattered the building during fierce fighting between rebels and loyal troops and civilians.

The legation is opposite the Bella Vista barracks, from which the rebels launched an attack in their effort to take the presidential palace.

United States Minister Charles A. Eberhardt of St. Louis, Kansas, and two members of his staff were at the Palace when the fighting commenced and could not reach the legation. Other members of the staff left the legation building immediately.

The rebel attack was beaten off. The government announced that the rebels threatened to bombard the city and that 3,500 loyal soldiers would be sent against them. The rebels lost five men in the early fighting.

The Loyalists were armed with machine guns and rifles and supported by three-inch artillery gun fire.

Barracks Bombaraded
They inflicted heavy losses on the insurgents and after driving them back under heavy fire, opened a bombardment with their artillery. Shells crashed into the barracks, exploded with a roar, and hurled debris into the air.

The rebels held their fortifications despite the shelling which appeared to be more spectacular than damaging.

The revolutionists seized the barracks Monday after the election on Sunday in which Manuel Castro Quesada, former Minister to Washington, was defeated by Ricardo T. Jimenez. The actual voting was held without disturbances.

The population was terrified by reports that a former priest, now known as General Jorge Volio, was urging the rebels to establish a Communist state. Many women and children left the Capital. Business was paralyzed. It was feared that the fighting might continue for days.

Negotiations Fruitless
Hostilities began after peace negotiations conducted by Minister Eberhardt proved fruitless. The rebels started an advance on the Capital as soon as they received word that the negotiations had collapsed.

Eberhardt, Military Attache Major Harris and a clerk named Zweig were at the presidential palace when the fighting began, and could not return. Secretary Welch and Edward Trueblood of St. Louis were reportedly marooned in the legation when the firing started but all members of the staff finally left.

A government statement that the rebels had threatened to bombard the city said:

"The government, having decided to reestablish order, has started a bombardment of the rebel fortress of Buena Vista. In the face of our attack, seditious factions have threatened a bombardment of our city if our bombardment is not suspended."

The rebel offensive, an attempt to capture the presidential palace, was led by a Salvadoran, Captain Avellar. He was killed, with four of his men. Nine others were very badly wounded.

The artillery bombardment of Bella Vista by the government was halted during the night because of the rebel threat to bombard the city, but residents were ordered to evacuate the city by noon today, after which the government planned to fire on the barracks from various points.

Michigan Mayor And Police Held
Bay City, Mich., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Mayor William F. McKeighan of Flint, his Chief of Police and five members of the Flint police department were free under $2,500 bond each today, under indictments charging conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law.

The Mayor, an avowed candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, Chief Caesar J. Scavarda, also Acting City Manager, and four policemen and one police woman were arraigned before Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle last night on indictments returned earlier in the day.

Mayor McKeighan said the indictments represented a coup of political opponents to frustrate his gubernatorial aspirations.

Liquor Runner Is Shot By Hijackers
Cahoon City, Ill., Feb. 18.—(UP)—Machine gun hijackers today killed Edwin Gill, 27, known to police as a liquor runner, and commandeered the truck he was driving.

A witness of the slaying told police a second man was riding the truck which was believed to be transporting liquor from here to Cincinnati.

The shooting occurred on a state highway near Powder, Ind.

Police said they believed the second occupant of the truck was Andrew Bandura, whom they described as a local gang leader. They believed he had been kidnaped and possibly slain.

EXPECT JAPAN'S POLICIES TO BE GIVEN APPROVAL

An Election Saturday May Strengthen Gov't's Hands

Washington, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Japanese policy in Shanghai and the Manchurian sectors may be affected materially by the result of Japan's general election to be held on February 20.

Far eastern experts in the State Department will be surprised if the present government under Premier Inukia fails to win overwhelmingly as its militarist attitude apparently has been extremely popular with the masses.

Too mild a Manchurian policy was one of the causes behind the fall of the previous government under Premier Wakatsuki, head of the Minseitō or Liberal party. This party held a majority in the Japanese Diet's lower house, however, and because of the impossibility of a minority handling such a crisis as the present with an unfriendly legislature, the House was dissolved.

Premier Inukia belongs to the Seiyūkai, or conservative party. His government practically took Japan off the gold standard, temporarily improving business; extended the military occupation of Manchuria, backed the aggressive punishment of the boycott at Shanghai, voted additional $14,000,000 for military expenditures in China, and consequently asked support as an aggressive, militant organization.

At the coming election the entire lower house membership of 466 will be chosen.

DE VALERA LEADS IN RETURNS FROM POLL IN IRELAND

If His Party Controls Dail England Will Have Trouble

Dublin, Irish Free State, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Eamon De Valera and his Fianna Fail party were increasing their lead today over President William T. Cosgrave's government candidates, as returns in the Irish Free State general election trickled in.

Latest tabulations of returns showed a margin of three districts for De Valera, with Independents and Labor candidates also gaining.

The returns were: Fianna Fail 22 Administration 12 Independents 6 Labor 2

There are 153 seats in the lower house (Dail) of which Cosgrave formerly controlled 65 and De Valera 56.

Both De Valera in County Clare and Cosgrave in Cork were overwhelmingly re-elected. Cosgrave's

In Congress Today

Washington, Feb. 18—(UP)—Senate debate continued today on the Glass-Steagall bill to expand Federal Reserve credit and currency. Administration leaders hoped for a vote before night.
Senator Vandenberg, Repn. Mich., defended bankers generally from the charge of Senator Glass, Dem. Va., that they have been cowardly in meeting the emergencies of the depression. Senator Morrison, Dem. N. C., lauded the bill as legislation that should be made permanent.
Democratic House leaders rejected President Hoover's request to reorganize the government departments and commissions and announced they would proceed with the economy problem in their own way. They plan first to make a thorough study of the governmental structure and then to make the changes by legislation.
Chairman Byrns of the Appropriations committee charged on the House floor that Mr. Hoover was trying to steal the Democrats' thunder. Rep. Mapes, Repn. Mich., defended the President. Byrns criticized the President for failing to support the Democrats plan for consolidation of the War and Navy Departments.
The first of the regular government appropriations bills for next year was reported to the Senate. It was the Agriculture Department bill and as reported by the committee carried $177,192,646, about $2,000,000 more than as passed by the House. Chief addition was $1,450,000 for fighting grasshoppers.
The House Military Affairs committee appointed a subcommittee to draft a Muscle Shoals bill, with a provision for government operation if the great power and nitrate plant cannot be leased to private interests.

Dr. Walter Splawn, railroad expert, before a House committee advocated legislation which would place railroad holding companies under Interstate Commerce Commission regulation. He declared the Pennsylvania railroad through its holding companies would be able to block the Commission's consolidation program if the law is not changed.
Investigation into real estate mortgages and securities was proposed in a resolution introduced by Rep. Loring Black, Dem. N. Y. He charged that millions of American investors have been victimized by alleged fraudulent securities.
He estimated that more than $10,000,000 of real estate securities have been sold in the last ten years, of which he said about one-third are in default.
The inquiry would be conducted by a special House committee of five appointed by the Speaker, with $50,000 for expenses.
Senator Hastings, Repn. Del., introduced a bill allowing deported aliens, upon the expiration of one year from the date of deportation, to apply to the Secretary of Labor for permission to re-apply for admission to the United States.

Painleve To Form New French Cabinet

Paris, Feb. 18—(AP)—Former Premier Paul Painleve, son of a baker, noted mathematician and one of France's most popular statesmen, today accepted an invitation from President Paul Doumer to form a cabinet to succeed that of Premier Pierre Laval, which resigned Tuesday.
One of M. Painleve's slogans is "no disarmament without security against invasion," so it was expected today that if he succeeded in the difficult mandate of forming a ministry there will be no change in the French disarmament program at Geneva.
He immediately began conversations with parliamentarians and planned to his his definite reply to President Doumer tonight.
M. Painleve indicated he would like to see Andre Tardieu War Minister in Premier Laval's cabinet become Foreign Minister in the new ministry so he could continue his activities at the disarmament conference with authority.
It was understood that M. Tardieu was insisting his old pupil, M. Laval, also be included in the new cabinet.

BOMBARDMENT IS CHINESE ANSWER TO JAP ULTIMATUM

Tion forest forts northwest of Woosung.
Fighting must cease before Saturday night, the Japanese insisted, promising that they would neither shell, bomb or otherwise shoot the withdrawing Chinese troops. Further, in event of complete withdrawal, the Japanese would not advance from their present positions. (This, presumably, would not entail withdrawal of the Japanese within the settlement.)
Previous verbal mention had been made of a demand for the razing of the Lion Hill forts defending Nan-king, but Kuramatsu Muray, Japanese Consul General, explained it had not been included in the written demands because the Japanese desire to localize the Shanghai affair.
The ultimatum demanded abolition of all anti-Japanese movements. It would include cessation of the boycott which crippled Japanese trade in Shanghai and led to the present situation. It also would include anti-Japanese propaganda and insulting press comment.
To assure the Chinese evacuation is complete, the ultimatum provided that a commission shall be sent to investigate the area within a radius of 20 kilometers of the settlement after the evacuation is finished. The demands insisted that Japanese lives and property in the evacuated area must be protected and that snipers must be controlled.
Demands Are Stern
The Japanese demands were stern, complete and business-like. They were backed by picked fighting men of the Japanese army and a formidable fleet of warships in the river. They were delivered tonight, just three weeks from the time the Japanese Marines began their advance into the Chapel district, only to be held by the unexpected and stubborn resistance of the Chinese.
The ultimatum left foreign authorities increasingly apprehensive over the outcome. Peace efforts were continued to the last minute.
The 19th Army which has held Shanghai for three weeks, continued to be the main Chinese arm of defense, despite the troops of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek which have been sent into the area. The Chinese military leader, who so far has taken no part in the resistance, was believed by some observers to have brought up his troops to await developments. They believed he would watch to see if the 19th Army would be smashed, not risking the defeat of his own troops. However, if the 19th held firm, he might incorporate units of the other armies with the 19th.
The artillery duel continued all during the evening and was still in progress at 11 P. M.
The Japanese demands were concluded with a threat by Lieut. Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda, Japanese Commander, of "drastic action to enforce their acceptance and execution" unless they are complied with "before the night of February 20."

JAPS ACCUSE U. S.

Tokyo, Feb. 18—(AP)—Foreign Office circles said today official information had reached Tokyo that the first draft of the League of Nations Council's note to Japan yesterday on the Sino-Japanese controversy had emanated from American sources.
How Japan would reply to the note had not been decided late today, but official opinion favored a reply questioning the legality of the Council's procedure, together with publication of a statement to the world, issued simultaneously, answering all the accusations contained in the note.
The note contained an appeal to "the supreme sense of honor of Japan" asking her to cease hostilities in China and said the twelve neutral members of the Council earnestly trusted Japan would admit her obligations and justify the confidence imposed in her by the rest of the world.
In Foreign Office circles it was said the action of the twelve neutral members of the council was irregular, illegal and "utterly inadmissible."
MacReady planned to deliver his "cargo" in Cheyenne, Wyo., to Lieut. James H. Doolittle, who is to complete the flight to the Atlantic coast. Between them the two pilots hoped to establish a new transcontinental record.

Brother of War

Sec. In Lincoln Cabinet Asks Aid
Fond du Lac, Wis., Feb. 18—(UP)—A thin old man walked into the emergency relief depot and asked to spend the night.
"Name?" queried the clerk.
"William Stanton," the man replied. "Residence, Adel, Sheboygan county."
"Age?"
"107."
The clerk looked up.
"One hundred and seven? Is that right?" He asked the old man.
"Yes, that's right."
Further questioning brought the reply from Stanton that he was a brother of Edward M. Stanton, Secretary of War in President Lincoln's Cabinet; that he was born in Ireland July 4, 1824; that he had worked for a farmer near Adel for 50 years but that he now "was on his own," and he was looking for a job trimming trees.
One of the staff at the emergency depot said he knew Stanton's son, who now is past 80 and a stone mason in Menominee, Mich.

CERMAK ATTACKED IN BOTH HOUSES OF GEN. ASSEMBLY

Called "Insolent" And Ungrateful By Several Legislators
BULLETIN.
Chicago, Feb. 18—(UP)—Mayor Anton J. Cermak today ordered preparation of a list of 247 city employees, including some policemen and firemen, who will be dropped from municipal payrolls tomorrow unless a way is found to pay their salaries.
At the same time, he criticized the Illinois General Assembly for adjourning until a week after the April 12 primary, with the Cook county relief program still incomplete.
Cermak's drastic payroll pruning would leave the city with only a skeleton organization. He declared, however, that no other course presented itself unless money for salaries is found today.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 18—(AP)—

Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago was criticized as "insolent, ungrateful and a man of bad faith," by members of the General Assembly today in brief but tempestuous sessions of both houses.
Following the attack on Cermak and the passing of a few bills, the legislature recessed until April 19, in order to give Assemblymen an opportunity to conduct their primary campaigns.
Phillips against Cermak were prompted by a statement ascribed to him in Chicago newspaper saying that the legislature "can go to hell" because the lawmakers did not act on Chicago tax funding bills before recessing for the primary elections.
"For the Mayor of Chicago to discuss this legislature in such terms is sinking to a pretty low level," Senator Earl B. Searcy (R.) Springfield said.
"The Mayor himself was a party to the adjournment and is showing extremely bad faith now in throwing the entire responsibility on the legislature."
Searcy added that a majority of the downstate members are not nearly so "afraid of the primary elections as the Mayor of Chicago is of a suit against him under the federal income tax law."
Another Senator said that Senator Richey Graham, the Mayor's son-in-law, had advised him yesterday to vote for the two month's recess.

Attack In House

In the House, the attack on Cermak was taken up by Rep. Howard Doyle, Democrat of Decatur, who cited the newspaper statements quoted by Searcy in the Senate.
"If the Mayor of Chicago were as interested in getting Chicago and Cook county relief legislation in proper shape so we could vote on it instead of spending his time in dark rooms doping out a Democratic primary slate that nobody wants, we would have given Chicago all it needs and have been out of here a long time ago," Doyle said.
Speaker David Shanahan said that the program of relief has been delayed because "Chicago lawyers and the lawyers in this Assembly don't know what they want."
Mayor Cermak was defended in the Senate by Minority Leader T. J. Courtney and Senator Harold A. Ward, both of Chicago. The argument was cut short by Senator R. F. Loughran Democrat of Chicago, who asserted that the discussion had no place on the floor of the Senate and accused the Republican members of "entering into the Democratic primary."
Before recessing the Senate approved and sent to the Governor bills to protect treasurers of drainage districts and of school boards operating under special charter by providing that the trustees must select depositors for the moneys of the drainage districts and school boards.

Wawokiye Club At Johnson Home

The Wawokiye Club met with Mrs. Edward Johnson in Nachusa for an all day meeting Wednesday, February 17th.

There was a good attendance of members and friends present to enjoy the bountiful picnic dinner served at noon.

The business meeting in the afternoon was opened by all joining in singing a hymn. This was followed by a scripture reading, roll call and minutes of the previous meeting.

Plans for the card party that the club will sponsor, were completed. After the meeting proper, a program in charge of the hostesses, was given as follows:

America—By Chorus.
Piano selection—Mrs. John Stanley, Jr.

Dixon Man And Eldena Girl Wed

Miss Bertha Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnson of Eldena and Clarence Howell, son of Mrs. John Howell of Dixon, were united in marriage in Rockford on Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. H. M. Bannan, pastor of The Trinity Lutheran church, read the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Howell are to make their home on Carroll avenue in this city. Mr. Howell is associated with the Borden Milk Company in Dixon. His bride is an attractive young woman, and both young people are popular in a large circle of friends.

4 egg whites, beaten
Beat yolks and add vanilla, lemon, water and sugar. Beat 2 minutes. Add rest of ingredients. Spread to thickness of 1-2 inch on waxed paper placed in shallow pan. Bake 20 minutes in moderately slow oven. Cool. Spread filling on half the cake and cover with other half. If desired this cake can be baked in 2 layer cake pans.

Filling
2-3 cup sugar
4 tablespoons flour
1-8 teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups whipped cream
2 cups sugar and flour. Add salt, yolks and milk. Cook in double boiler until thick and creamy. Stir frequently. Add vanilla and butter. Cool. Use as filling between baked cake layers. Top with whipped cream and garnish with red cherries.

Insurance for Women In Home Assured

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—Insurance for women in the home is now available through twenty or more accident insurance companies through the efforts of Division of Family Finance of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, according to an announcement by the Bureau of Personal Accident and Health Underwriters. The need to protect women injured in accidents while at their home duties was pointed out to the insurance representatives by Dr. Josephine L. Pierce Lima, Ohio, chairman of the family finance division of the General Federation.

"Falls, burns, cuts and scratches make up the greatest of home accidents," Dr. Pierce says. "Mortality statistics show that each year there are approximately 7700 accidental deaths among women, while 962,500 are injured, and, furthermore, nearly 25 per cent of all accidents occur in or near the home."

Records of one company show that $30,000,000 has been paid covering 241,000 accidents of types in which homemakers might figure. Of this number, 56,000 were caused by falls; 15,000 by travel accidents; 12,000 by vehicle accidents other than automobile, and 32,000 by automobile accidents.

The principal needs of the homemaker are provisions for the payment of treatment by a physician or surgeon, nurses' fees, and hospital fees, in case of accidental injury, together with definite sums payable for specific injury, such as dislocations, as well as for loss of life and limb. These needs are covered in the new policy. Provision is also made for double indemnity for injuries sustained under specified conditions.

Plans to secure a homemaker's accident policy were first sponsored by the club women under the direction of Dr. Peirce, who arranged a conference last year of General Federation representatives with representatives of insurance companies, who are members of the Bureau of Personal Accident and Health Underwriters. At that time, it was revealed that there were one or two policies on the market which approximated the needs of the case. However, under the new policy there is now available an adequate type of insurance which very closely meets the needs of the woman in the home or those homemakers who desire protection against loss as a result of accidental injuries.

"Curves" to Remove Surplus Farm Crops

Mt. Vernon, Ill., Feb. 18.—(UP)—Help in removing the surplus of farm products can be obtained through fashion's decree that round "curves" must stage a comeback. Stuard E. Pierson, Director of the State Department of Agriculture, told the Illinois Farmers' Institute at its annual banquet here last evening.

Pierson declared that the substitution of a "thin wafer of toast, a leaf of lettuce and a dab of mayonnaise for real honest-to-goodness victuals, supplementing the bend-down-sister movement," was among the causes for the surplus that has lowered prices on all farm products.

He urged his auditors to do their part to consume the surplus by re-establishing the almost lost art of eating hearty meals.

W. R. C. to Hold Meeting on Monday

The Dixon Woman's Relief Corps No. 218, Auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, will hold a regular meeting Monday, February 22, at 2:30 in the Grand Army hall. A short business meeting will be held, after which a program commemorating the Bicentennial of the birth of George Washington will be given at 3 o'clock, to which the public is cordially invited.

Two plays, with a stage setting of cherry blossoms, will be presented.

the characters dressed in appropriate Colonial costumes.

George and Martha Washington, Uncle Sam and Betsy Ross, all impersonated by children of the corps members, will sing a song, which has been composed by Mrs. Lydia Parks, especially for this occasion.

After the program, a "Colonial Tea" will be served to members and guests by the February committee.

To add to the interest of the occasion, a door prize will be given to the fortunate person holding the lucky number.

Fri-Lo-Ha Class In Meeting on Monday

On Monday evening the Fri-Lo-Ha class of the Christian Sunday school held their monthly meeting at the Christian church. The Misses Dorabelle and Fredica McCordie acted as hostesses.

After the meeting was called to order by the president the class sang "On Fri-Lo-Ha." Reports were given by the devotionals and social committee, in which the Fri-Lo-Ha members made plans to attend the Passion Play at Bloomington, Sunday, April 24th. The devotionals were led by Miss Nadine Padgett, "Communion of the Monument."

In the stewardship lesson stewardship standards were studied, divided in the following manner: God is the Owner—Opal Moss-holder.

We Owe God—Catherine Preston. We Should Honor God With His Money—Nadine Padgett.

We Become a Partner with God—Ethel Seyester.

A dialogue of "Stewardship" followed by all members present.

The meeting was closed with sentence prayers after which tempting refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Meeting Auxiliary V. F. W. Friday Eve

The Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars held their regular meeting Friday evening in G. A. R. hall with a very good attendance. The meeting opened in regular form. Communications were read and several other business matters came before the order. Three new members were initiated at this meeting, making a total of twenty new members taken in during the six weeks membership drive.

A report was given on the first of the series of card parties held in G. A. R. hall on Feb. 4th. Final plans were made for the second of the series to be held this evening, Feb. 18th in G. A. R. hall with the committee in charge being Mesdames Lella Sheller, Lucille Stafford, and Mabel Stanley.

The membership drive had ended in a tie. The old members will have the new members as their guests at a supper to be held at 6:30 on Friday evening, Feb. 26th, in G. A. R. hall. The meeting closed in regular form to meet again Friday evening, Feb. 26th.

Farewell Party Thursday Evening

Mr. and Mrs. George Fritz at present occupants of the Floyd Thompson farm at Lighthouse, were tendered a farewell party Thursday evening by friends and neighbors. It was a happy gathering, pleased to present a gift as a friendship appreciation and well-wishes to the Fritz family, who move soon to a dairy farm between Dixon and Sterling. "500" was played during the evening. —Franklin Reporter.

Compton's Woman's Club in Meeting

On Monday evening, Feb. 15, about sixty members and guests met in the regular meeting of the Woman's Club, in the church parlors, which had been prettily decorated by the hostesses. The following miscellaneous program was presented:

GLORIFYING YOURSELF by ALICIA HART

Chin straps are about in a class with old-fashioned curlers when it comes to disfiguring a lady.

Few have the courage to wear them all night. But a chin strap will do a lot for you if you don't it for a half-hour a day, preferably when you are getting ready to go out.

The best way to use a chin strap that really fits you is to use surgeon's gauze and wrap your own. There are some astringents that are mighty good, sprinkled on cotton, when tied on under the chin strap to do their bit for firming the chin line.

Don't leave on any astringent that smarts too much, though. Use your own judgment about that.

After you have given your face its pick-me-up and taken your bath, adjust the chin support and take a full half hour out, lying down. Try to sleep. The rest will do you as much good as the chin strap, is you are fatigued.

If you are a brave soul or if you have a room of your own where no one will see you, it is an excellent idea to wear a chin strap all night if your chin is beginning to droop on you. There are some excellent and serviceable commercial chin straps on the market. But be sure the one you buy fits you perfectly or it won't do any good. An excellent idea is to get one from your beauty parlor which has been fitted to you. Moreover you'll learn how to put it on, this way.

No chin should be strapped until it has been massaged thoroughly, always with upward motion. Then cream should be patted in, for those flabby muscles need nourishment quite as much as stimulation.

This chin strap business may seem an inconsequential thing to you. But just remember how much good an excellent pair of shoe trees do your shoes or a good hanger does your costume, our chin should be looked at in quite the same objective way.

Miss Hank Hostess At "Heart" Party

On Friday from 4 to 9 o'clock, Miss Lois Lucille Hank of South Dixon entertained her schoolmates and teacher, Miss Grace Jacobs, with a "heart" party. The children came directly from school and played games and enjoyed a treasure hunt through the house, which ended in the dining room, where a delicious chicken dinner was served at a long table prettily decorated with cupid and hearts. After this more games were played and valentines were presented. The children then departed for their homes having had a pleasant evening at the Hank home.

Other guests were Miss Isabelle Wollaston, Miss Maude Torgeson, and Lois Lucille's grandmother, Mrs. Henry Hesse.

A DUTY WE OVERLOOK.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney of New York, addressing an audience of churchmen recently, expressed regret that church and community work for boys often ends when the youngsters reach the age of 16, or thereabouts.

"I wish," he said, "that the churches of all denominations would do more to try to direct the boys of the city to wholesome recreation. The Boy Scout troops often seem to lose the boy after he is 16, and it is then that he falls into bad company."

There is a whole lot of truth in this; for the lad of 16 very often finds himself a misfit, and the two or three-year period that he begins at that age can be an extremely trying and dangerous time.

At 16 he is no longer—in his own eyes, at least—a boy; he is entering manhood, and he is desperately anxious to do the things that men do. But he has not quite got there, as yet. The adult world still looks on him as an unlucky cub, and grown-ups who will treat him as a grown-up are few and far between.

So, feeling himself lost between two worlds, he is apt to have a rather hard time. He starts drifting, and the first group that takes a real interest in him, and treats him as a more or less mature individual capable of making his own choices, is likely to win his allegiance permanently.

And it is right at this point that one of modern society's most terrible bits of wastage comes in. The lad from an underprivileged neighborhood will drift into some uncouth places before he gets his bearings, and if his luck happens to be out he will take root in one or another of them.

So, a little later on, we have another youthful gunman, or another furtive-eyed young loafer with a shady present and a dubious future, or another pool-room hanger-on ready to get into any kind of trouble that offers itself.

We have discovered, in recent years, that children must be given a chance to get wholesome recreation. But we have not yet learned that this guidance must extend through the first part of young manhood. Commissioner Mulrooney has touched on a point that deserves a lot more thought than we have given it.

THE PROBLEM AT GENEVA.

So far, the proceedings of the disarmament conference at Geneva have hardly been of a kind to make a believer in world peace give three loud cheers.

The thunder of the guns in the far east has sounded all too clearly in Geneva. The conference, despite its high importance, despite the millions of people who are hopefully looking to it for results, has moments in which it looks almost farcical.

But all of this is not simply because an impish and sardonic fate has decided to drop a monkey wrench into the machinery. The reason lies farther back—and is more disturbing. The conferees are having difficulties, not because international affairs have taken a bad turn, but because the world at large, in trying to get rid of war, has tackled the job wrong-end-to.

We are trying to insure world peace without giving up the practices that lead to war.

International co-operation, on really important matters, is still little more than a dream. Each nation continues to foster the old rivalries. Nationalism is exactly the sort of force it was prior to 1914. The course that led to war in 1914 is still being followed—and instead of finding a new course, we are trying to persuade ourselves that everything will be all right if only all hands will agree to reduce armies and navies!

And because we are trying to do the job in that way, the delegates at Geneva are having a heart-breakingly discouraging time.

It would be possible to start the job at the other end. If an honest effort could be made to straighten out the map of Europe; if attempts to get national advantages at the expense of one's neighbors could be abandoned; if some of the damaging restrictions on world trade could be removed; if the "advanced" nations could forget their scramble for special privileges in Africa, China and elsewhere—if all of those things could be done, then disarmament would be simple.

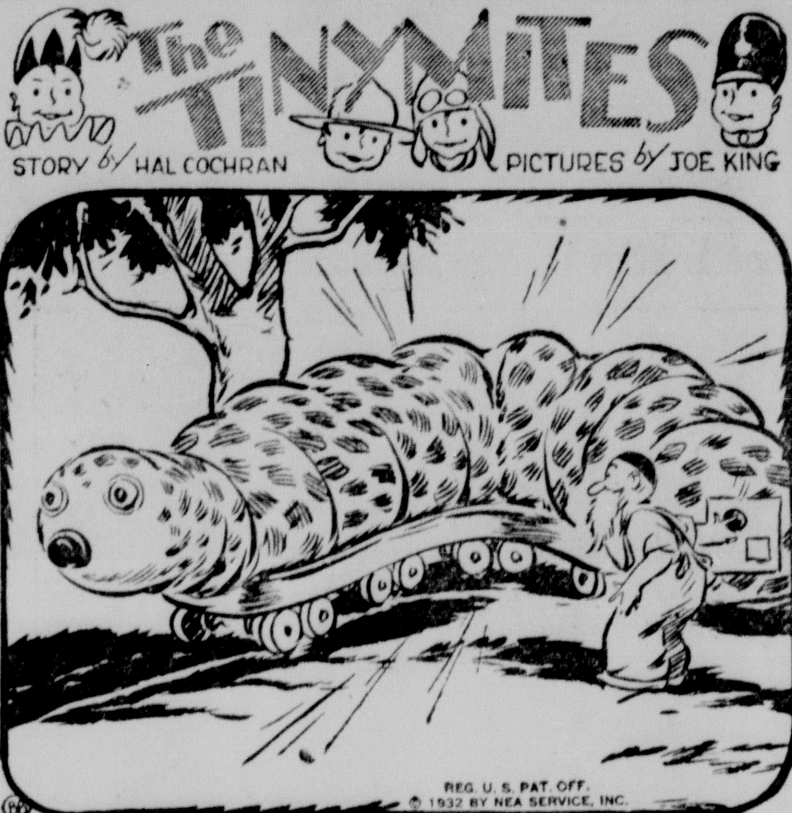

But we haven't done them and we haven't tried to; and, in consequence, our attempts to get a respectable disarmament treaty face very steep odds.

Credit is the blood stream of our economic life.—President Hoover.

All mankind is looking to this conference.—Arthur Henderson, Chairman, Geneva Conference.

We are all in the same boat.—Otto H. Kahn, Capitalist and Philanthropist.

I hold the view that bonding companies are contributory to crime.—Federal Judge William Clark of New Jersey.

The caterpillar looked real queer and Scouty cried, "It's fun in here. What is this big thing made of? That's what I would like to know. The seats are cute as they can be and seem just big enough for me. Say, if this thing can travel on the ground, what makes it go?"

The builder man just smiled and said, "What questions pop into your head, but I will gladly answer them, if you'll just give me time. You see, at parks they have these things, just like the shoot-the-chutes and swings. This bug is somewhat better, though, 'cause it knows how to climb."

"Beneath it there are little wheels and when the bug goes, each one squeals. Perhaps it's 'cause they're rusty. I will oil them some bright day. Now, if you Tynmites will sit still, I'll give you all a dandy thrill. I merely push a button and you'll be right on your way."

"Where will this take us?" Duncy cried. "We might not care to have this ride. Supposin' we land in a stream and all get soaked wet? Why don't you join us? Come along! Perhaps, then, nothing will go wrong. You own the bug and you can make it act real nice, I'll bet."

Again the man laughed long and loud. "Oh, no, there's plenty in your crowd," he answered. "I will stay right here. I have much work to do. When everything is said and done, I know you'll have a heap of fun. And now I guess it's time that I cry out goodbye to you."

Then something happened very quick. It was a funny little trick that made the caterpillar's back swish over and close tight. The man had pushed a button once. It was one of his clever stunts. Of course all of the Tynmites were buried now from sight.

"A Light Shined in the Prison."

(Read Acts 12:5-11.)

Night in a prison! What darkness is more impenetrable than this?

Yet the Light of God's Presence can penetrate the dungeon walls, and God's messenger can open prison doors. All that we need to do is to wait for the Light with prayer, and be ready to follow the angel when he beckons. There come to all of us those inescapable hours when the brightness of the world is shut out, when the walls close in upon us, and when our frantic efforts to escape meet with a resistance as solid as that of a barred and bolted door. At such times our faith is put to one of its severest tests. Can we relax and be patient? Can we wait with quiet expectancy? Can we pray with serene confidence? If so, our deliverance is sure!

Prayer: O God, who deliverest Thy servants from every sort of bondage and dost rescue those who trust in Thee from the darkness of their imprisonment, grant, we beseech Thee, that our faith may endure through the long watches and triumph over every doubt; that when Thy Light shineth and Thine angel cometh, we may be ready to accept the deliverance which Thou, Thyself has prepared for us in Thy great mercy, through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

FRENCH REPULSE RAID

—dt-b 1fla. ssi.ppp 7ac 1 m mmm

On Feb. 18, 1918, the German armies resumed operations on the Russian front, crossing the Dvina river.

This move came as the hour of the end of the armistice between the Central Powers and the Soviet government came. Austrian troops did not participate in the new offensive.

French troops repulsed a raid on their trenches on the western front, in the Butte du Mesnil sector.

German planes made their third raid in as many nights on London, but there were no casualties. In the two previous raids, 26 persons were killed and 42 injured by bombs.

Charles Humbert, French senator and owner of the Paris Journal, was arrested and charged with treason in connection with his dealings with Bolo Pasha, later condemned to death for treason.

Tomorrow—The Battle for Life.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

BY UNITED PRESS

Washington, Feb. 18.—(UP)—This chiefly for the benefit of those lady and gentlemen readers who are interested in furnishing homes which means they are interested in the cost of furniture.

The State Department has gone into the matter of furniture shopping in a pretty extensive way because it is constantly faced with the problem of furnishings homes for its Consuls, Ministers and Ambassadors abroad. It has prepared for the House of Representatives some interesting figures on the subject.

These figures show that the cost of furnishing, in the finest American fashion, a residence fit for occupation by the American Ambassador to Japan, is $5.65 per square foot of floor space. To furnish apartments for clerks and minor employees of the Ambassador, the department found the cost was $4.65 per square foot.

The furniture was of the best American make. The Department feels that it cannot afford to send second grade American furniture to its legations and embassies. The furnishings come constantly under the eyes of foreigners, and they judge the competence of American industry by what they see.

The Department finds that the cost of furniture is going down steadily. A Duncan Phyfe dressing table that cost $170 in 1927 cost $87.50 in 1931; a large bed, for an Ambassador to sleep in, that cost $218 in 1927 now costs $121.45; A George Washington chiffronier costing $150 in 1927 costs $133 now; a Duncan Phyfe dining table that cost $285 in 1928 can be bought now for $150, a dining room chair to go with it cost $62 in 1929 and in 1931 only $33.

And if one is having trouble with one's help objecting to doing this and that, perhaps this schedule of the duties of servants in the embassy in Paris will be a helpful guide:

Housekeeper—General supervision of custodians; liaison with chancery; passes on requests for supplies and repairs; answers all important phone calls.

Janitor—Acts as concierge, guardian, gateman. Genetically supervises the building and its entrances and furnaces. Receives deliveries. Admits all visitors. Answers minor phone calls.

Chief Cleaner—Acts as interior head doorman, usher, announcer, receives all visitors of mark, responsible for cleaning building and is custodian of all cleaning supplies (including mops and brooms.)

Repairman—He is the "painter, laborer, packer, unpacker, varnisher, putterer, man of all work" and does the heavy cleaning.

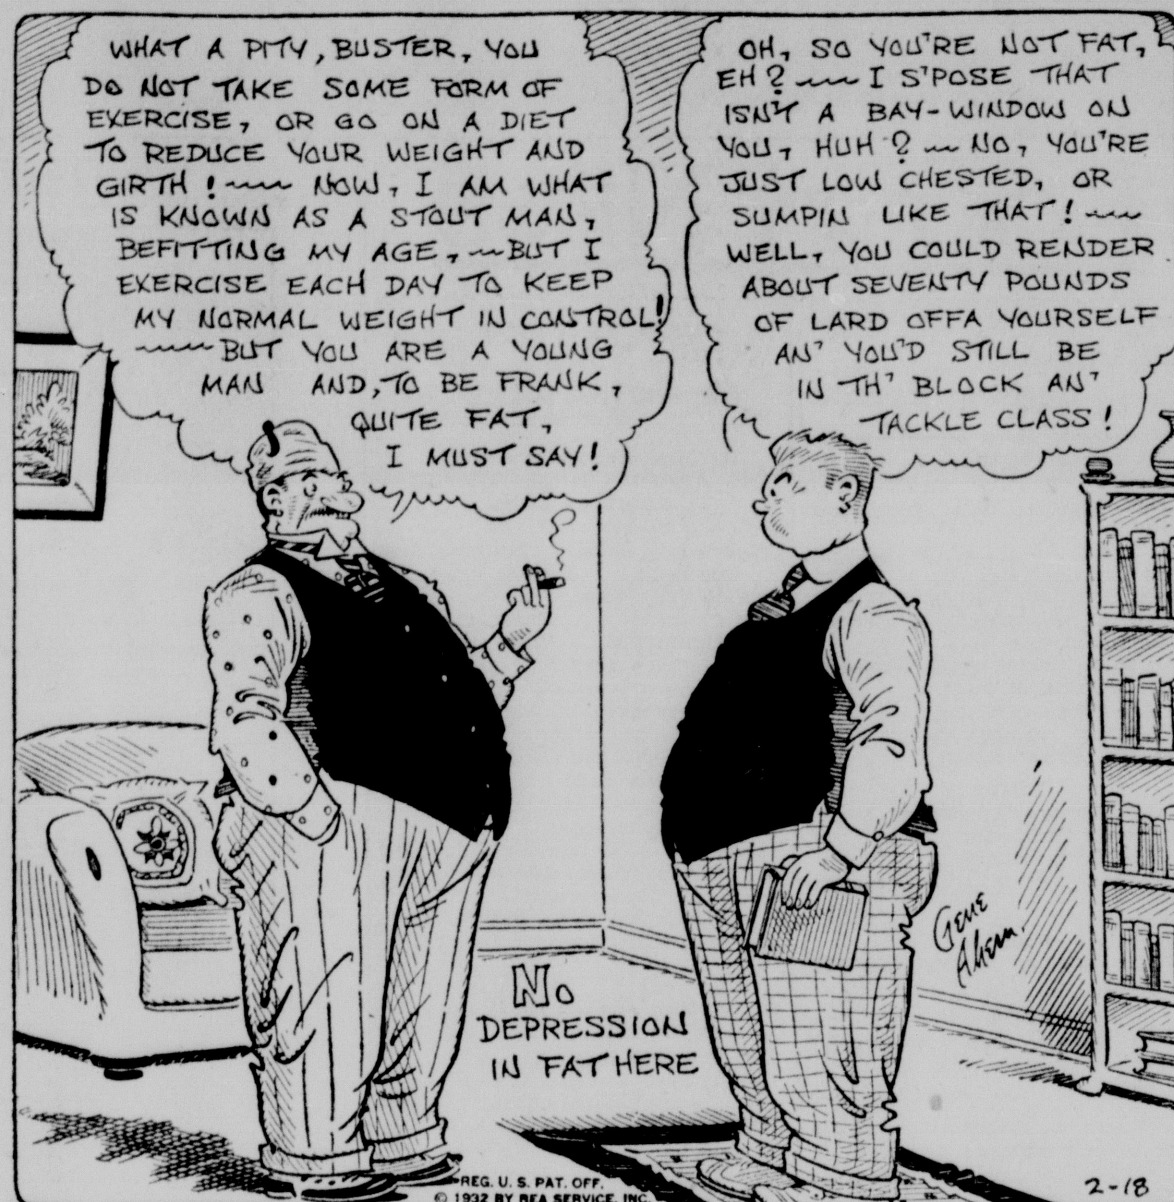

Charwomen—They do the cleaning and ironing; mending of linen, curtains, carpets and gloves of other servants; clean the bedrooms, and scrub and wax the bedroom floors.

Furnaceman—Empties ash cans and is the fireman, stoker, custodian of the coal and fuel, cleans the basement and the other servants quarters.

Doormen—Act as relief doorman, clean the dining room and the office of the secretary, wax and polish the floors except the bedroom floors; dust and clean; scrub floors except bedroom floors, and scrub the walls. It takes three of them.

ROCKEFELLER, SR., FINDS CHIEF JOY IN HIS RELIGION

Is Devout Worshipper At Sunday Meetings At Ormond Beach

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of three articles dealing intimately with the present daily life of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., at Ormond Beach, Fla. The picture of his customary activities is of particular interest at this time in view of the recent curtailment, because of Rockefeller's health, of certain of his daily habits.

(Copyright, 1932, by United Press.) Ormond Beach, Fla., Feb. 18 (UP)—Next to John D. Rockefeller enjoys his religion more than any other phase of his present life.

His faithfulness to the church emphasized by his regular attendance at the Ormond Union, takes the form of generous financial support. It is made more personal by his insistence upon taking an active part in the services—and seeing to it that his family, his associates, and his servants do likewise.

Rockefeller listens intently to the sermon and, when the service is over, mingles with the congregation outside, discussing the day's lesson with them, "asking God's blessing" on all who approach him, and inquiring of the health of persons he has met since the week before.

On these occasions he dresses formally, in frock coat and high hat with a flower in his button hole. Members of his household are exhorted to take part in the services, acting as ushers, taking up the collection, and teaching in Sunday school.

When hymns are announced, he rises and holds the hymn book firmly in his hands, lifting his voice upon occasion, high above those in his immediate neighborhood.

Religion, He Tells His Close Friends, "there is real true happiness."

Frequently at these gatherings at the "meeting house," counter-parts of similar meetings in vestibules of small churches the country over for more than a century, he gives away some of his shiny new dimes.

His custom of presenting dimes to favored friends and acquaintances grew out of his devotion to the cause of thrift. The dimes he gives away do not mean "ten cents." They are symbols. "To a Rockefeller, a dime is the same as $1,000 and $1,000 is the same as a dime," his friends say.

Hundreds of thousands of these souvenirs are sent to Ormond Beach from the mint each year. They come in packages of a thousand. Each servant receives one or more at some time in the course of the day. To Vincent Frasca, his chauffeur, Rockefeller has given two dimes and a nickel each day for three years—on Frasca's promise that he would save a similar amount. The bargain has been kept.

Mild, Kindly, Courteous Rockefeller's manner at meeting the public is mild, kindly and courteous. Even when his temper might well flare into biting speech, he maintains his composure. His strongest rebuke to an impertinence is to say "please excuse me," and withdraws himself. Yet he can become very positive, as members of his household know, and when he says "no" he means "NO!"

Contradicting the popular impression that an army of doctors and nurses constantly attend the aged millionaire, Rockefeller has only one physician and he is called only on rare occasions.

"Mr. Rockefeller should live to a ripe old age," said his personal doctor recently. "He has no signs of organic trouble and while his diet is somewhat restricted, he can eat about what he likes. It is the constant care of a nurse, plus plenty of exercise and fresh air, that keeps him fit at his advanced age."

His home, inside and out, is a model of simplicity. It gives the impression of gentility and culture, but not of lavish display. He has a garden in front of it that is the pride of his heart.

As another lesson in thrift, it might be noted that the Rockefeller family automobile, still bearing a high gloss despite antiquated lines, is ten years old and going strong.

WASHINGTON

HIS LIFE STORY IN PICTURES, COMMEMORATING THE 200TH ANNIVERSARY OF HIS BIRTH.

Washington's letters to prominent men aided greatly in massing sentiment for a stronger union.

He presided over the Constitutional Convention in 1787.

By NEA Service

The "father of his country" frankly despaired of the turbulent political condition of the United States in the years immediately following the close of the revolution. "Something must be done or the fabric will fall, for it is certainly tottering," he declared.

He was kept hard at work recouping his personal losses suffered during the war, partly through neglect of his estates and also because of a depreciation of paper money which cost him $30,000. However, he found time to repeatedly write to prominent men urging that steps be taken to form an indissoluble union. These letters aided greatly in massing sentiment for a stronger and sounder government. The rebellion of Daniel Shays and his army of 2000 farmers in Massachusetts, with the resultant destruction of property, led Washington to decide that radical reform was necessary.

Washington was chosen one of Virginia's five delegates to the Constitutional Convention, which opened May 13, 1787, in Philadelphia, to render the Federal constitution adequate to the exigencies of the union.

He was unanimously chosen to preside over the convention and his influence did as much, if not more, than any other force in bringing the delegates to an agreement and to obtain ratification of the constitution.

"Frequently a well disciplined force, properly equipped, can defeat many times its number of poorly trained opponents."

Murray Wants To Be Sure Of $1000

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 17—(AP)—The representative Governor W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray sent to Georgia to sound out sentiment says his observations lead him to believe the Oklahoman will enter the state presidential preferential primary March 23 against Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York.

Governor Roosevelt, who spends his vacations at Warm Springs, Ga., each year, already has filed for the primary and Governor Murray wants to ascertain his chances to win Georgia's twenty-eight votes in the Democratic national convention at Chicago before he pays his $1,000 entrance fee for the contest.

The Oklahoma Governor's representative, Ed Semans, former State Chairman of the Democratic party in Oklahoma and a member of the Murray-for-President Club there, came to Atlanta yesterday to begin the Georgia survey. Many told him sentiment is strong for Roosevelt here.

Find Miner Alive Under Big Cave-In

St. Clair, Pa., Feb. 17—(UP)—Rescuers found John Peterick, 28, miner, alive today after removing 35 feet of debris under which he had been entombed by a mine cave-in for 12 hours.

Peterick's head was uncovered first. He was unconscious but still breathing.

Workers then proceeded to free his body, held fast by a mass of rock and dirt which buried him while he was digging coal near here.

That motor car traffic keeps growing.

It keeps crowding so in cities that there seems to be no end.

It gets so heavy that new rules for parking, even plans for widening certain streets are made, and when that is done the traffic proceeds to grow still heavier.

The great trouble is that when cities were first built motor cars were undreamed of, and little attention was paid to building streets and roads for the future.

Cities must plan now for the present and for the future.

Some way must be worked out to handle present conditions. Needs for the future must be provided for by careful planning. Now is the time to plan. Every new road new street, and every kind of highway must be built so it will be able to take care of the ever increasing traffic.

"Oldest Court in World" Settles Disputes on New York's East Side

By PAUL HARRISON (NEA Service Writer)

New York—The courtroom is crowded with a strange assortment of humbly—long-bearded men in skull caps, handsome young women in furs, a few paunchy merchant princes, battered pushcart vendors, young men, bent old women with heads covered with shawls.

Three judges occupy the bench. A young clerk begins to drone through a huge sheaf of records: "Morris Blum against Abraham T. Einhorn; Louis Saperstein against Max Pruzansky; Mrs. Rebecca Epstein against Jacob Klotz; Joseph Klotz, Isaac Klotz—"

The world's oldest court is in session. They call it, here, the Jewish Conciliation Court of America, but it really is a continuation of the ancient communal institution of the race. To it come many of New York's Jewry, particularly the people of the squalid east side, seeking just settlement of their religious business and domestic disputes. Here, without cost, red tape or lawyers, they may stand before the judges, and pour out their grievances in their own way, and in either English or Yiddish. Before a case is heard the disputants sign an agreement to abide by the judges' decision. This has the power of a contract enforceable at common law, and is specifically reinforced by the state arbitration act. Many of the cases involve details of Jewish religious customs which a non-Jewish judge or jury could neither understand or appreciate. Some differences involve simple matters of pride of no standing in a regular court.

How It Works For instance, here comes a little wrinkled, bent old woman of 76 a relic of the Old World. She is ashamed to admit that she is not receiving sufficient support from her son, who not only is prosperous, but who refuses to attend this hearing.

The court assigns an investigator to look into the son's affairs. If the mother's story is verified, he will be ordered to pay. Should he refuse (and only about one in a thousand willfully ignores such an order) he will be arrested and the mother's case will be handled in a regular court of Louis Richman lawyer and executive secretary of the organization.

Richman was one of the organizers of the Conciliation Court 12 years ago, and has served it continuously, without pay, ever since. He has handled more than 6,000 cases, attends every session, and figures he has effected hundreds of reconciliations and settlements by private arbitration.

"It is a highly successful service," he recently declared, "not only for the people concerned, but for the congested city and state courts. Incidentally, the regular courts often refer cases to us for settlement."

"We are becoming national in our scope, too. Jewish communities in Chicago, St. Louis and Cleveland have asked for help in establishing similar organizations. New Haven, Conn., and Toronto, Canada, already have them."

DIXON QUINT TO HAVE BUSY WEEK AFTER OPEN DATE

Boys Are Tied With Rochelle High For Cellar Berth

By DON HILLIKER

City	W. L.	Pct.
Belvidere	5 0	1.000
DeKalb	4 1	.800
Sterling	2 3	.400
Dixon	1 4	.200
Rochelle	1 4	.200

Tied for last place in the North central standings, the Dixon high school basketball squad hits an open date on the schedule this week.

Only three practice sessions will be held this week but Monday will see the beginning of plenty of action. On Friday, February 26, Dixon travels to Belvidere to engage in a two-game program with the probable champions. The next evening the final game of the season on the home floor will be played with DeKalb as opposition. The locals engage Sterling the following Friday and then prepare for the district tournament in Sterling, beginning March 4th.

Dixon vs Sterling (Grade School)
The grade school "all-stars" selected from the players in the Dixon primary school league, have two games this Friday and Saturday. On Friday night they meet Sterling on the latter's floor. Saturday afternoon the public has a chance to see the "makings" of the future high school fives. The two games, lightweight and heavyweight, are to start at 2:30 p. m. on the new high-school floor. An admission of 10 cents will be charged.

Trailing With Jack Dempsey On "Come Back" Road

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
Chicago, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Almost four and one-half years after he had Gene Tunney on the floor for the famous "fourteen count," Jack Dempsey will make his first appearance in a Chicago ring in fighting regalia tonight against King Levinson, ranked No. 7, in the heavyweight division by the National Boxing Association.

The match is billed as a four-round exhibition, but it has all of the aspects of a real fight. Both fighters will wear 9 1/2 ounce gloves—3 1/2 ounces over the regulation size, but not too large to prevent either from inflicting damage or scoring a knockout.

A crowd of 23,000, the largest ever to witness an indoor boxing match, will attend an enable Dempsey, the most popular fighter of all time, to complete the cycle of boxing records. He has participated in every million-dollar gate and holds every outdoor and indoor mark. The previous indoor record is 22,340 made in 1930 by the Golden Gloves intercity New York-Chicago bouts in the same building.

The gate receipts are expected to be about $76,000, of which Dempsey will receive about $35,000 and Levinson $9,000.

More interest has been manifested in the bout than any boxing contest held in Chicago since the Dempsey-Tunney battle in September, 1927. Special trains will bring fans from Milwaukee, Madison, Wis., Detroit, Cleveland and other mid-west cities. Governor Brucker and former Governor O'Brien of Michigan will be ring-side spectators. Amos 'n' Andy will broadcast their nightly skit from the Stadium in order to attend.

For Dempsey, it will be the most important test of his comeback campaign. It might send him on up the rugged trail which proved too treacherous for Jim Corbett, Jim Jeffries, Bob Fitzsimmons and Jess Willard. Or it might write him into the career of the champion of all champions.

Levinson, who was nine years old when Dempsey conquered Willard, has fought his way to a place among the ranking heavyweights in the past two years by the sheer power of his wild right hook. He has no pretensions as a boxer nor is he a polished fighter, but he can explode one of the most dangerous right hooks in the game. He floored Tommy Loughran three times with it, staggered Primo Carnera and dropped Leo Lomski nine times in five rounds.

After seeing Dempsey in action in two exhibitions in Milwaukee 10 days ago Levinson said: "Dempsey is a sucker for a right hook."

Dempsey, realizing that his entire future in the ring depends on the outcome tonight, will attempt to stop Levinson.

"I know Levinson is tough," said Jack, "but I am going to try to stop him with one punch, if I can."

Aside from 15 years difference in age, Dempsey and Levinson are almost identical in many physical measurements. Each will weigh about 193. Each measures 33 inches around the waist, 14 1/2 inches around the biceps, 13 inches around the forearm, 22 inches around the thigh and nine inches around the ankle.

Since he began his exhibition tour at Reno last August 19, Dempsey has appeared in 29 cities, met 81 opponents and scored 29 knockouts. He is fresh from a knock-out-a-minute against two opponents at Flint, Mich., Monday night and a 3-round knockout over K. O. Christner at Cleveland a week ago.

Billy Jones, Philadelphia Negro, will meet George Nichols, Buffalo southpaw, in the 10-round semi-final of the National Boxing Association's light-heavyweight tournament. The preliminaries are scheduled for 26 rounds of boxing.

Baseball Gossip

Santa Catalina Island, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Between anxious glances at the weather charts, Manager Rogers Hornsby has taken enough peeks to be blated over some of his rookie talent.

In the first limbering up drill yesterday, a drill air but spoiled by rainfall, he watched pitcher Lyle Tinning, who recorded 24 victories and only two defeats for Des Moines of the Western League, and Stanley Hack, his third base hopeful, and commended their style. Tinning impressed him particularly with his throwing grace.

Los Angeles, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Following closely after the Chicago Cubs, who arrived two days ago, the first of the New York Giants arrive today to take up their spring training toils at Wrigley Field. It will be their first season on the Pacific seaboard.

Headed by James J. Tierney, the secretary and Tom Clarke, coach, the contingent, mostly pitchers and catchers, was to work out this afternoon, weather conditions permitting.

New York, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Paul Waner, star outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates, may be traded to the New York Giants for three players, it was learned today.

It is understood the Giants have offered infielders Sam Leslie and Eddie Marshall, and outfielder Fred Leach for the elder Waner.

Leach signed his contract with the Giants yesterday.

New York, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Frankie Frisch, second baseman with the St. Louis Cardinals, is not a holder, he said last night, denying persistent rumors of a break between him and the Cards over salary differences.

The 34-year-old infielder, who was the "most valuable player" in the National League last season, returned recently from a baseball tour to Japan. He has been working out daily, preparatory to going to Bradenton, Fla., for spring training.

"I'm confident things will be ironed out all right," Frisch said. "I've always got along fine with Branch Rickey and Sam Breadon. I'll write them a letter in a couple of days and arrange for a conference."

New York, Feb. 18.—(AP)—An injury will keep Irving Jaffee, who won the Olympic 5000 and 10,000-meter skating championships at Lake Placid in "American style" racing, from testing his speed against his Olympic rivals in the "European" style of skating in the world speed skating championships.

Jaffee injured his left elbow in a fall at the finish of the 10,000-meter race.

With Jaffee out and with Jack Shea, winner of the 500 and 1,500-meter Olympic events back at his studies at Dartmouth, the world's championships will be left largely to representatives of Norway, Sweden and Finland.

Steeplechasing Has Failed To Pay Out
Chicago, Feb. 18 (AP)—Steeplechasing has failed to make a successful comeback in Chicago according to reports.

During its 1931 meeting, Arlington Park ran two steeplechases a week. Most of the fields, however, though the purses usually ran between $5,000 and $6,000.

STANFORD YOUTH WILL TRY "IRON MAN" ACTIVITY

Ben Eastman Expected to Be Star of Coming Track Meets

Palo Alto, Calif., Feb. 18.—(AP)—To Ben Eastman, a gangling, bespectacled youth of 19, will fall the distinction this year of enacting one of the great "Iron man" stunts ever attempted in the history of track and field athletics.

The Stanford youth, who startled the track world last year by tying the world's record for the quarter-mile and running the half in only a shade over record time, is being primed by Coach Dink Templeton to do almost everything except high jump and throw the weights in the approaching outdoor campaign.

The sandy-haired, studious youngster is going to run the 220, 440, and 880-yard distances and carry the baton one lap on Stanford's mile relay team. Such a campaign promises to put him in fine fettle for the Olympics.

Last year he ran the quarter-mile in 47 4-20 seconds to tie the world's record established by Ted Meredith. The first half-mile Ben ran in practice he was clocked in 1:52.2.

Templeton thinks Ben will be ready this season to break the world's records both at 440 and 880 yards. And he thinks the youth will be one of the "big guns" of the Olympics at Los Angeles.

For his part, Eastman neither is dubious nor over-confident. He says he's "just going to run." He has no hobbies and admits he's not a "personality kid." He is an average youth, of good family and well behaved. He is majoring in economics.

Ben's older brother, Sam, is a miler on the Stanford squad but is not such a star as Ben. However, Ben said he got more thrill out of watching Sam win a race last year than he did in running the last lap of a mile relay in which the Stanford team set a new world record of 3:12.6.

In running that lap, Ben whizzed around the track in 47 seconds flat. Later, in practice, Templeton clocked him at 21 3-10 seconds in the 220-yard dash, less than a second over the world mark.

EAST HAS STARS, TOO

New York, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Gene Venzke a boy who always wanted to be a runner but never thought he'd be good enough, has become the outstanding member of a quartet of track and field stars who have risen during the current season from places of obscurity to become America's leading Olympic hopes.

The other three are George Spitz, New York University's remarkable high jumper, Leo Sexton, shot put ace of the New York Athletic Club, and Emmett Toppino, sprinter from Loyola University of New Orleans.

Venzke leaped into the spotlight about ten days ago when he smashed the indoor mile record with a 4:11 1-5 performance. He soared to even greater heights last night when he ran a 4:10 mile, the second fastest ever recorded. In winning the Baxter mile at the New York A. C. games in this remarkable time, Venzke not only smashed his own indoor record but also beat the listed world mark of 4:10 2-5 held by Paavo Nurmi, leaving untouched only Jules Ladoumègue's unofficial world record of 4:09 1-5.

Leo Leonard, his leading rival, was left 40 yards behind as Venzke covered the last quarter in 59 2-5 seconds.

He plans to run again next Monday in the National indoor championships then to take a long rest from competition.

The other members of the quartet took most of the honors Venzke left last night. Sexton, who had been known as a good all-around performer but a champion in no line during his college days at Georgetown, continued his great display of shot puttings which has come to light this season with his second record breaking toss of the week. A put of 52 feet 8 3-8 inches wiped all the world's records from the books, beating not only the indoor mark of 51 feet 11 1-8 inches he made last Saturday but the outdoor record of 52 feet, 7 1-2 inches held by Emil Hirschfeld of Germany.

Spitz once more beat his listed high jump mark of six feet, seven inches, doing it for the third time this season, but failed to attain the six feet 8 1-2 inch height he reached at Boston Saturday.

Toppino, sensation of the sprinters, twice equalled the 60 yard dash record of 6 1-5 seconds as he swept brought a great field to victory, beating Ira Singer, the indoor champion, and George Simpson, former Ohio State flash.

Three Cushion Champ Accepts Challenges

Chicago, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Auggie Kieckhefer of Chicago, who captured the world's three cushion billiard championship for the tenth time last week, has accepted the challenges of four of his greatest rivals for a special tournament.

The challengers are: William T. Hoppe, Welker Cochran, Arthur Thurnblad and Jay Bozeman. Thurnblad the 1931 champion, and Bozeman competed in the championship last week. The special tournament calls for 20 games at the rate of two matches each afternoon and night, starting Monday.

New Rule May End Wolverines' Trick

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Followers of University of Michigan football are wondering whether the changes in gridiron rules will eliminate two of the Wolverines' favorite scoring plays, "Old 83," and the fake place kick.

A new rule designed to make the game safer, states that "the ball shall be declared dead when any part of the ball carrier's body except his hands or feet touches the ground."

In "Old 83" the quarterback crouches on one knee behind the center while hiding the ball. In the fake place kick a back is on one knee while taking the pass from center. Technically, the ball would be "dead" in both instances.

It has been suggested that the quarterback can spread a handkerchief on the ground and kneel on it to avoid downing the ball.

Mastro Deserts Ring For Stage

Chicago, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Earl Mastro, little Chicago Italian, who is regarded as the outstanding contender for the world featherweight title, has given up his ring career for one in vaudeville.

Mastro, only 22 years old and a remarkably clever boxer, left today for Springfield, O. to make his first appearance in a song and dance act with his wife as partner.

Following his failure to take the featherweight title from Bat Battalino last November in the Chicago Stadium, Mastro accepted no more offers for bouts, even refusing another chance at Battalino. During his short career he has beaten almost every star in his class, including Bud Taylor, Fidel La Barba and Eddie Shea.

Steve Hamas Takes 28th Straight Win

Los Angeles, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Armand Emanuel, once something of a heavyweight sharpshooter, of the west's punch bowls, was only knocked out victim twenty-five on sturdy Steve Hamas report card today.

The former Penn State finished off San Francisco's battered batter last night after 30 second of the second round with a short, stiff right to the chin, but a thunderbolt right below the heart in the first round paved the way.

Hamas weighed 187, a half-pound less than his victim. It was Hamas' twenty eighth victory in as many starts.

Peoria Youth Kills Chum Accidentally

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 17.—(UP)—C. A. Slater was shot to death today by his chum, Joseph Baer, 21, when the "unlabeled" gun exploded.

Baer was twirling a revolver around his finger when it fired. He thought he had ejected all the shells a few minutes before.

The shooting occurred in Baer's home, in the presence of his mother and two small brothers.

SCOUT COUNCIL TO MEET

New York (UP)—Announcement has just been made that the 22nd annual meeting of the national council of the Boy Scouts of America will be held in Washington, D. C. (tentatively), May 27 and 28.

The Yangtze; Busiest River In Whole World

Washington, D. C.—Dispatch of additional American naval vessels to the Yangtze River basin directs attention to an inland waterway already familiar to many American seafarers. On the Yangtze, the world's busiest river and China's chief trade artery, Uncle Sam has maintained a gunboat patrol since the Boxer Rebellion. This flotilla is one of two U. S. Navy units on guard outside American territory. The other patrol is on the Canton River, south China.

"The Yangtze, while neither the longest nor largest river in the world, is a Chinese combination of Mississippi, Colorado, Hudson and Potomac," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "Like the Mississippi it is the largest stream in the country; like the Colorado it flows through the deepest gorges; like the Hudson it has, in Shanghai, the New York of China; and like the Potomac it had, until very recently, the capital, Nanking, a city of historic associations."

Mississippi-Missouri Longer
"Compared with the other great rivers of the world the 3,000-mile length of the Yangtze is exceeded by the Mississippi-Missouri, the Amazon and the Nile. In volume it ranks third, after the Amazon and the Congo, but in one respect it leads all others: with its tributary rivers, lakes and canals it constitutes the inland water system most used by man as a carrier of commerce."

"The Yangtze drains in all some 770,000 square miles, an area equal to one quarter that of the United States. In its basin live 175,000,000 people, one-tenth of the population of the entire world. A broad, deep natural waterway for ships serves a teeming, civilized population, living on fertile, cultivated soil in a temperate climate. These people produce and exchange goods with the outside world. Little wonder that the Yangtze is considered of strategic as well as economic importance!"

"The Yangtze is more to China than any river could be to the United States. In a land of few railroads and almost no improved highways the Yangtze provides the only reliable route to the rich interior of China. The Hwangpu or Yellow river, China's second largest stream, is too temperamental to be of high economic value. Its sudden floods and shifting channels have earned for it the nickname 'China's Scow,' whereas the Yangtze is 'China's Joy.' Yangtze floods, unlike that of last summer, are generally not destructive, and they cover the bottom lands with new, rich earth which more than compensates for flood damage."

Ocean Steamer, Go Inland
"Furthermore, on the broad bosom of the Yangtze, whose name means 'Son of the Ocean,' ocean steamers may ascend 640 miles to Hankow, second largest city of China. Here, in the midst of the central plains, is the distributing center, the New Orleans of the Yangtze basin. Smaller steamers can push on to Chungking, Yungku, Suifu, and rowboats to Batang, in eastern Yunnan Province—total distance of 1,500 miles from the Yellow Sea."

"Some 500 miles in the Yangtze, which follows a west to east direction, the lateral boundary between the north and the south of China. Geographically, however, China is divided into three main sections, with the great Yangtze Valley forming a middle state. The Yangtze basin is an entity, the people, flora and fauna being distant from those to the north and to the south of it."

"The Yangtze has several names among the Chinese, only the last few hundred miles being known as 'Yangtze.' The Chinese word for river, 'Kiang,' is the Chinese word for river. Some Chinese call the stream 'Ta Kiang,' or Great River."

Dwells the Grand Canyon
"Rising in the mountains of Tibet, near the birthplaces of three other mighty Asiatic rivers—the Yellow, Mekong, and the Salween—the Yangtze carves a way through tall mountain ranges, forming some of the deepest river canyons in the world. In one place the Yangtze gorges is 13,000 feet deep, dwarfing the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, which drops less than half the distance."

"Through the middle plains the Yangtze drains some of the richest and oldest farming lands in the world. Here are many shallow lakes, which absorb the spring thaws and act as feeding reservoirs in the dry season, and fields of tea, rice and wheat. Mineral deposits and ironworks around Hankow, which is really three cities in one, suggest a comparison between this section of the Yangtze and Pennsylvania's Monongahela."

"In the lower Yangtze delta the countryside are only a few feet above sea level. The delta has millions of inhabitants to whom land is so valuable that not a single square foot can be wasted. Numerous canals, natural and manmade, make this region a Holland of the East. The canals serve as safety valves in time of flood, and also carry nearly all the traffic of this part of China. Thousands of Chinese, loath to waste even a foot of precious land on a dwelling, are born, live and die on houseboats, going ashore only to till their little farms or to market their produce."

"Each year the mighty Yangtze empties into the Yellow Sea some 6,428,000,000 cubic feet of earth in the form of silt—slightly more than the amount excavated to build the Panama Canal! If straightened out on the map of the United States the Yangtze would measure from San Francisco to Cape Cod. Throughout its lower navigable stretches an untold number of steamers, barges, junks and sampans constantly pass. Rafts of logs, with miniature villages on top, drift down with the current. Often these floating homes are partly covered with earth,

Broadway Shudders in Grip of New Mystery Thrillers

With Eye Cocked Toward Hollywood, Stage Provides New Fare For Horror-Lovers

They participate in the horrible goings-on along the New York Rialto. Charles Laughton (center) help to inject thrills into "The Fatal Alibi". Pauline Starke (right), of the old D. W. Griffith school of silent picture stars, comes to the stage in "Zombie," a tropical horror-drama.

New York. Theater-goers had begun to believe that a Broadway winter would pass with theater fare as mild and unchilling as the weather outside. Not a goose-pimple in a carload of plays; no murder, horror shrieking women, baffled detectives or fumbling police!

All of which pleased the movies greatly, for upon the screen could be observed the greatest collection of horrors to be found outside a Grand Guignol. Here were "Jekyll and Hyde," "Dracula," "Frankenstein" and "Murders in the Rue Morgue." Word went about that Hollywood was in the mood for bigger and better mysteries and shockers.

So into town came a so-so spine chiller, titled "Black Tower." It concerned a demon scientist who transformed patients into frozen statues; a sort of Pygmalion in reverse. It was said around the bright light belt that this piece would fold up as coldly as one of the doctor's victims, when Hollywood spied it. Here was something made-to-order, for their gallery of horrors. Whereupon, "Black Tower" spurted into the renewed life essential to an eventual Hollywood production. And is now, one hears, selling seats a month in advance, or more.

Meanwhile, a much better and brighter yet thrill-inspiring piece, "Whistling in the Dark," opened around the corner with Ernest T. Truex appearing as the diminutive on which vegetables grow, and pigs and chickens wander at will. Women hang out washing and children play just as if they were on solid land.

"Changhai once was directly on the Yangtze but the channel shifted and the city now lies twelve miles from the mouth of the great stream, on the tidal Hwangpu River."

LEE CENTER ITEMS

By MRS. W. S. FROST
Lee Center—Supt. Guy Price Jones was ill with tonsillitis Monday but is now able to attend to his duties again.

Marilyn Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Miller celebrated her fourth birthday last Saturday by entertaining a number of little friends. Dainty refreshments were served including a birthday cake with candles and the little hostess received many pretty valentines.

author who is compelled to show a gangster mob how to put an enemy on the spot without being caught at it. Again Hollywood smiled.

Whereupon, again, all the hoarded mystery manuscripts in town suddenly were dragged from trunks and the producers' offices are reported flooded with them.

One there was which showed no sign of haste. Jed Harris, having lost some of his millions experimenting with the higher drama, had been doing some long and earnest work on an English importation, "The Fatal Alibi," adapted from Agatha Christie's "Murder of Roger Ackroyd." London had had this piece several years ago, but Harris had it rewritten and bided his time until he could cast Charles Laughton in his original role. Laughton, one of the best and most finished character performers England has sent over, had been tied up in "Payment Deferred."

Now he is once more the posturing, excitable French detective who keeps this mystery play alive. There has been a wide difference of opinion among New York critics as to whether this makes digestible mystery fare.

Pauline Starke, once quite a favorite in the days of the silent cinema but missing from the limelight for many months, tries out her voice in "Zombie," which has to do with Haitian voodoo.

day cakes with candles and also received a number of valentines.

Members of the local Rebekah lodge attending the school of instruction in Dixon Friday night given by Mrs. Witmer were: Mesdames Linda Brasel, Fattie Lippincott, A. M. Blessecker, F. L. John, Harry Patterson, Vernon Pomeroy, James Klausen, Raymond Degner and Adele Henschel. Mrs. Lippincott stayed until Saturday with Mrs. Henschel.

Lyle Frost and Herbert Conibear played with Amboy at LaMoille Saturday night.

The Pilgrim Study club will meet Thursday, Feb. 25, with Mrs. Harry Patterson. Mrs. S. E. Dishong will be the leader and the response to the roll call will be an Old Testament promise.

W. J. Leake attended the annual inspection of the Dixon Commandery by state officers Monday night. Mr. Leake is a member of one of the drill teams.

Josephine Frost of Amboy spent the week-end with the W. E. Jones and W. S. Frost homes.

Mrs. S. E. Dishong entertained the Raymond Degners and Mrs. Hattie Lippincott at dinner Sunday in honor of Mrs. Degner's birthday.

Miss Elizabeth Daw who died recently in Dixon was buried in Woodside Cemetery last Thursday on the lot of her cousin, O. N. Daw.

Mrs. Eliza Oakes returned to Oak Park with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Suter who spent Sunday here.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Coryell and family of Amboy, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Shotwell and family of Galesburg, Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Rees of Scarborough and Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Riley and family were among the guests who were entertained at dinner last Sunday by Mrs. James Riley and daughter, Mrs. B. P. Mason of Memphis, Tenn.

The measles epidemic has spread now and there are about fourteen pupils from Miss Conibear's room absent and several from Miss Slaymaker's. It is hoped it has reached the peak.

Those who have followed the tales of William Seabrook may recall that a "zombie" is, literally, a resurrected corpse, returned to life — if caught in time — through witch doctor methods. Whole brigades of "zombies" may be found laboring under brutal overseers, so go the folk tales.

Playwright Kenneth Webb spent some time in the Haitian belt and appears to know his way around among the "zombies" better than around the theater. There is, to be sure, an eerie quality about the animated corpses that does something to an average spine. And, hence the basic idea is excellent for the "creek" school.

As for Miss Starke, a graduate of the old D. W. Griffith school, she has a pleasant contralto voice that may well be fitted into the microphone.

Then there is "Monkey," written by the late Sam Janney, and intended to be one of those farcical thrillers popular a few seasons back. Had Janney lived, he would doubtless have brushed the play up before allowing it to go on. There is the comedy cop and the austere house-detective and an eccentric inspector made for laugh purposes, and a few weird characters and a bit of the uncanny.

All of which combine to make a week devoted chiefly to capturing the army of mystery play fans. And more coming, I hear.

Plans for Costly Soviet Palace Revealed at Urban's One-Man Benefit Show for Jobless Architects

By NEA Service—

New York — In a benefit exhibition for unemployed architectural draftsmen, Joseph Urban, modern architect, theatrical designer, and artist, has revealed his plans for the Palace of the Soviets, which will be built in Moscow on the site of the Czarist cathedral now being razed.

His is a one man show, although it includes other samples of his work, is devoted principally to the monumental project of a Soviet government headquarters. Urban was one of two American architects who, with six from France, Germany and Italy, were commissioned by the U. S. S. R. to submit plans for the development.

The main auditorium will be one of the world's largest buildings if Urban's designs are adopted. It would seat 15,000 persons and have a stage upon which 10,000 persons could stand. Other buildings in the group would include a second auditorium seating 6,000, exhibition hall assembly rooms, offices, administrative headquarters. Urban was one of two American architects who, with six from France, Germany and Italy, were commissioned by the U. S. S. R. to submit plans for the development.

OBITUARY

JULIA HELEN BEEDE (Continued)

Julia Helen Beede, wife of Enoch R. Beede, deceased, was born in Freeport, Illinois, October 12th, 1854, and passed away at her home, 421 East Chamberlain street, Dixon, Ill., February 12th, 1932, at the age of seventy-seven years and four months.

The death was due to complications and infirmities of old age.

She was united in marriage to Enoch R. Beede in the year 1874 and lived for thirty years on a farm in Palmyra, Wis. County; later retiring from the activities of farm life, and moving to Dixon in the spring of 1906.

To their union were born two children, George E. residing at home, and Mary E. Strock, living at 615 E. Chamberlain street, Dixon. Her parents and one brother and two sisters preceded her in death. One sister now living, Amelia H. Light of Rockford, Illinois.

While living in Palmyra, she united with the United Brethren Church of East Jordan, and for many years was a faithful and devoted member, always having a fervent desire to see her Church prosper in all of her activities. As a Christian she leaves to her sacred memory, an example of real sacrifice for the help of others.

Soon after locating in Dixon, she united with the Grace Evangelical Church, remaining active to the interests of this denomination, as in former years as long as health and strength would permit.

An eventful epoch in her life was to celebrate, with her husband, family and friends, their fiftieth wedding anniversary on October 12th, 1924, commemorating the successful Journey down life's pathway of fifty years together.

"Not since the Chicago fire has there been such a period with such a disastrous situation as today's" was the cry of Mayor Anton Cermak who has fought for many months for revenue relief in the legislature.

"We are the victims of politicians above the acute needs of the people."

With the prospects that the Chicago treasury would remain empty until the Assembly reconvenes April 19, preliminary steps in what was said by officials to be one of the largest refunding programs ever undertaken were made last night as Mayor Cermak ordered a survey of all city departments with a view of leaving only a skeleton organization.

The pains of death are past, Labor and sorrow cease, And life's long warfare closed at last. Her soul is found in peace.

Soldier of Christ, well done; Praise be thy eternal name; And while etherial ages run, Rest in thy Saviour's joy."

"Our dear mother has gone to the other shore."

We hear her loving voice no more, But she seems to beckon with an unseen hand, "Come in, for her loved ones to join her in that heavenly land."

The service was conducted from the late home at 2:30 and from the Grace Evangelical church at 3 o'clock on Monday afternoon. The funeral was in charge of her pastor, Rev. A. D. Shaffer, assisted by Rev. Frank Brandel of Freeport. Interment in the Sugar Grove cemetery.

LEGISLATURE IN RECESS WITHOUT FUNDING TAXES

Chicagoans Are Defeated In Effort To Prevent Month's Recess

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 18.—(UP)—

Three special sessions of the Illinois General Assembly called by Governor Louis L. Emmerson to provide revenue relief for Cook county and to consider unemployment relief and government economy measures stood adjourned today until April 19—one week after the April primaries.

Both branches of the Assembly concurred in a resolution to take a two-months recess after stormy sessions yesterday afternoon in which downstate and Chicago stood on opposite sides of the fence on the proposal.

The Chicago members, outnumbered almost two to one, voted against a recess, declaring immediate relief was needed in their city. Downstate members voted almost solidly for the recess after pointing out that no feasible plan for providing relief for Cook county had been presented.

Senator Richard J. Barr, Republican, Joliet, made the motion for the long recess after Corporation Counsel William Sexton of Chicago had told members of the Senate that at least two of the bills in a program of five to fund Cook county taxes, then pending in the upper branch, were unconstitutional and two other House of Representatives.

After the resolution had been passed by the Senate it was pushed to the House where a number of the members had already returned to their homes, declaring they would be back after the primaries in April.

Chicago members of the lower branch of the Assembly demanded a roll call on the recess proposition, while downstate representatives requested a decision by a viva voce vote. The latter finally prevailed when it was found a quorum was lacking.

Bills passed by the Senate before the recess was taken included one which provides an appropriation to pay highway contractors whose contracts were invalidated by the Supreme Court's decision on the prevailing rate of wage law. It goes to the Governor.

The Michel-Searcy bill providing that Sanitary District Trustees designate a bank for the district's deposits also was passed. The measure now goes to the House.

Among the bills passed in the House yesterday was one by Representative Anna W. Ickes, Republican, Chicago, fixing the salaries of Appellate Court Clerks. The bill abolishes the fee system and fixes $8,500 as the salary for the Chicago clerk and $4,500 for the three downstate clerks. It now goes to the Senate.

Governor Louis L. Emmerson yesterday signed the McCauley-Lee bill providing an appropriation of $75,000 for the care of dependents of soldiers and to carry out a rehabilitation program for war veterans in hospitals throughout the state. The measure is a companion bill to one passed by the legislature to permit fifteen-round championship boxing bouts. The extra revenue obtained from championship bouts will make up the appropriation.

Situation Critical

Chicago, Feb. 18.—(AP)—A new and deeper pall of gloom hung today over the thousands of payless public employees and threatened the schools and municipal offices of the city and county with closing.

Voices of despair where hope held yesterday were raised by civic and municipal leaders and retrenchment swere planned that may plunge many workers into the ranks of the jobless and curtail the functions supported by the public treasury.

The city had based its hopes of financial relief on legislative enactments permitting the funding of unpaid back taxes by bond issue. But the special session of the Illinois General Assembly adjourned last night until April—after the primary elections—without acting.

"Not since the Chicago fire has there been such a period with such a disastrous situation as today's" was the cry of Mayor Anton Cermak who has fought for many months for revenue relief in the legislature.

"We are the victims of politicians above the acute needs of the people."

With the prospects that the Chicago treasury would remain empty until the Assembly reconvenes April 19, preliminary steps in what was said by officials to be one of the largest refunding programs ever undertaken were made last night as Mayor Cermak ordered a survey of all city departments with a view of leaving only a skeleton organization.

The time-a-dance girl

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Beautiful ELLEN ROSSITER, a salesgirl in Barclay's Department Store, lives with her extravagant mother, MOLLY HARCLAY, her sister sister, MYRA, and her young brother, MIKE. The two girls support the family. Molly foolishly spends money saved to pay the rent. Ellen decides to work nights at Dreamland as a dance girl hostess until the sum is made up. The hostesses must wear evening dresses and Ellen has none. BARBARA HILTON, a love and Ellen's employer, sees the girl crying and discovers the situation. She gives her a new frock when she refuses to accept it as a gift. Ellen forgets her wealthy employer's kindness when at Dreamland she meets handsome LARRY HARROWGATE, an artist. Ellen discovers Larry is engaged to ELIZABETH BOWEN, a debutante. She is hurt that he has failed to tell her this, but, though she meets him, she continues to see him.

Ellen quarrels with her mother, refusing to break an engagement with Larry to accept one from Barbara. She goes to Coney Island with Larry and finds him more and more in love with her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIV

CONY ISLAND was having a record Sunday. Under a cloudless sky of electric blue lay an ocean the same shade filled with people who had fled the heat of the city for the heat of the amusement resort. The golden sand of the beach was completely hidden by the sweltering multitude. People sprawled under umbrellas. In steamer chairs, or lay face down on the beach, sun-bathing.

Policemen herded lost children while frantic mothers searched for little Jimmy or Ike or Jane. Picnic parties gorged on popcorn and hot dogs. Young husbands proudly paraded with their young wives. Pretty, pale-faced girls strolled in pairs, bright eyes alert for the chance of an escort. Lovers taught their sweethearts to swim. Life guards bobbed up and down in boats, listening for cries of help. It was a record Sunday.

"Honestly," said Ellen in an awed voice, "I've never seen so many people before. Never!"

"You mean so many that you wouldn't like to know," Larry amplified thoughtfully.

"Snob," she accused him.

"Certainly," he agreed. "So are you. Confess it—don't you think we're the nicest people at Coney Island, this afternoon?"

"Certainly we are," she agreed demurely, delightfully conscious of his hand on her bare arm, delightfully conscious of his nearness when the crowd pressed them together.

"Still want to swim with all of New York for company?"

They ate hot dogs from the hot dog wagon and cotton candy which melted under the tongue like sweetened air. They breathed mingled odors of sawdust and canvas and popcorn. They went to the slideshows and peered with fascinated horror into narrow booths. There the fat lady quivered like mountain jelly. The cigarette fiend, thin as a snake, smoked endlessly. The sword swallower challenged his digestion with knives and nails.

"That reminds me," remarked Larry with the utmost seriousness, "I'm hungry."

"After all those hot dogs?" marvelled Ellen, giggling at his foolishness.

"Only three or maybe four. You're hungry, too. You can't deny it. Your tongue's hanging out at the thought of food."

They lunched on the roof of the Midnight Moon Hotel, despite Ellen's feeble protests at such extravagance. They ate lobster Newburg and strawberry ice, with reckless disregard of their health, while from far below they heard steamboat whistles and saw the tiny golden circle of the ferris wheel turning over and over.

"Then the stars came out."

"Listen, what time is it?" asked Ellen suddenly. "I've got to get to Dreamland and you promised to return the car to your friend."

"That doesn't matter," Larry replied carelessly as he leaned across the table toward her. "The only thing that matters is that you and I are here on this roof and that you have the loveliest eyes. Did you ever take a good look at your eyes—Ellen?"

But Ellen was not to be diverted. "No wonder you're always late," she rebuked. "Don't you ever look at your watch?"

"As a matter of fact," he laughed, "I haven't a watch. I'm afraid if I carried one I'd have to look at it."

Ellen was taken back by the novelty of this viewpoint. What an idiot he was! But she was a little troubled also. Larry had distinctly told her his friend intended to use the car that evening. She had her job to remember. She could not
